This training institute will build skills for rural grantees working within a coordinated community response (CCR) regardless of the stage of development or implementation. CCRs that have a barely formed interagency team, those that are facing hurdles, or those with a well-established team that want to take their work to the next level will benefit from attending. This is a rare opportunity for you and your community partners (prosecutors, law enforcement officers, batterer intervention program staff, probation and parole officers, and system- and community-based advocates) to learn together how to strengthen, expand, and give new direction to your CCR. Participants will leave with an understanding of how CCRs can effectively prioritize and implement solutions that enhance protections for victims and their children, hold offenders accountable, and sustain best practices in response to battering.

General sessions will address:

- CCR mission, purpose, & function
- Moving from networking to taking action
- The Blueprint for Safety
- Identifying & accounting for risk & danger
- Approaches to effective victim engagement

Discipline-specific tracks will focus on:

- Law enforcement
- Prosecution
- CCR coordination and advocacy

REGISTRATION

Communities are encouraged to attend as teams of up to 4 CCR members to achieve the most meaningful outcome from the training. There is no registration fee. Please register by October 24. A wait list is available for communities that wish to send more than 4 people (please indicate on the registration form below).

TRAVEL

When we receive your registration, we will send you preliminary confirmation that indicates we are holding a space for you at this event. However, DO NOT make any travel arrangements until you receive a second confirmation that will include complete travel, meeting, and hotel details. At that time, you can make and pay for your travel and hotel arrangements. Your OVV set-aside training funds cover all allowable travel expenses.

HOTEL AND LOCATION OF THE INSTITUTE

Hotel and training site is accessible.

Specific hotel details and institute location will be sent with confirmation.
